Then Why Do We Do It?

By Lafe Tolliver, Esq
Guest Column

Dear Reader, let me know if you ever have seen or heard of one of the following exchanges occurring at anytime:

(1) Puerto Ricans approach the Irish to sponsor their "Riches of the Ricans" gala social event.

(2) Chinese Americans solicit financial donations from Norwegians to underwrite their, "Beijing Bash 2012."

(3) Polish Americans seek funding from Haitians to sponsor their "I'm Happy To Be a Pole!" street carnival.

(4) Italian-Americans asking for substantial financial contributions from Nigerians to underwrite their yearly,

"It's An Italian Thing, You Wouldn't Understand" parade.

(5) German-American's seek funding from Japanese businessmen to sponsor their annual, "Back To Berlin!" cultural exposition.

Found none? Didn't think you would but yet, guess what "we" do? We continually and without a modicum of shame, remorse or pride go out and solicit anyone and everyone include The Toledo Blade to sponsor the annual luncheon of The African American Legacy Project.

I recently got my mailer and I involuntarily clenched my jaws when I saw, again, that somehow, we just don't get it. "We" continue to use that recessive DNA begging gene called, 'Please Suh!' and ask for money.

Now, I'm talking about begging for money to do social events that supposedly honor ourselves by ourselves and for ourselves but, yet, we cannot raise the funds from ourselves to "glorify" ourselves?

Please. Do not kid yourself. "We" have the organizational wherewithal and ample monies to fund our own recognition luncheons and receptions...if we want to.

The problem is. "We" don't want to. "We" would rather do the soft shoe dance routine and begging cup than go to "we" others and raise up the cash.

"We" have used that recessive begging gene called, 'Please Suh!' so many times that it apparently has become a part of our DNA makeup.

Yes, it is commendable that The Blade will reach into their coffers and underwrite this affair but what is the residual damage?

I mean, how many times can "we" go to "others" and with a straight face, do the 'Please Suh!' song and dance routine and leave with any shred of self-respect?

I mean, how many times can the black community go into robotic mode and always go, hat in hand, to "other" benefactors to underwrite "our" events?

I mean, when does some level of personal pride kick in that says, "hey, if we cannot fund this event ourselves, then we do not need to have it!"

Don't get me wrong. The African American Legacy Project is a splendid idea with a great mission statement and serves as a valuable historical bookend to local black history, but...when will we, as a community, start to take the reins of our own financial assets and fund our own social/historical affairs?

Imagine what would happen if white benefactors and white corporations would stop funding "our" social events and would say to us, "Listen Shauntae or DeMarcus, enough is enough! We have been funding you for years and by now you should be able to pay for your own shindigs."

Why, we would be outraged and would be willing to put on our walking shoes and protest ever so loudly at such perceived disrespect!

Especially if we were to find out that when the donors go home and at their dinner table or private watering holes, they talk about another long day at the office putting up with the embarrassing pleas of Negroes begging for nickels and dimes to fund their good times.

But. If we can not or will not fund "our" own affairs, who is disrespecting whom?

Why cannot we pass the bucket and collect the nickels and dimes and dollar bills and hold modest gala events until we learn the finer points of fund raising from "ourselves?"

There is something inherently of worth and value when "we" stop looking for corporate welfare to fund our chicken and greens dinners and "we" step up to the plate and pay the cost to be the boss.

When you are always on the lookout for a handout you seemingly never come to the place of helping yourself up and out (all sincere apologies to Jessie Jackson for the rhyming of this paragraph).

Come on folks! We can and need to do better. What type of legacy are "we" leaving the next generation if all they see is "we" folks always with a hand out holding a battered tin cup grinning and saying, "Please Suh!"

U.S. Senator Sherrod Brown: A Proven and Effective Leader

By Kevin Boyce, Ohio State Representative
Guest Column

As November inches closer, many other states around the nation are just now waking up to the news that we in Ohio have known for too long – 2012 is a crucial election year and the right-wing special interests have declared they will stop at nothing to beat Democrats who are working on behalf of the middle-class.

In our state's race for U.S. Senate, the stakes couldn't be higher. On all of the issues that matter most in our communities, U.S. Senator Sherrod Brown is on the right side, standing strong for Ohio's families, which is why I am proud to put my full support behind his candidacy.

Sherrod is a proven and effective leader on matters from college affordability to the health and well-being of our seniors to the number one issue on everyone's mind, jobs, and it is this track record of fierce advocacy for the middle class that makes him the clear choice this November.

Every year, the cost of a college education increases, putting that dream out of reach for more and more students. Just last month, Senator Brown led the charge on a bill he introduced that would stop the upcoming increase in student loan interest rates. Sherrod understands that education lights the path towards a more prosperous future, and he is doing everything he can to make our education system work for more families in our state.

Senator Brown has never backed down from a fight just because the special interests are against him. On the ballot alongside Sherrod this November will be a measure to repeal the restrictive voter suppression law that is nothing more than a direct attempt to lower voter turnout and intimidate voters. Sherrod held a hearing on the impact of this dangerous law, and he is fighting with us to ensure we repeal it in November.

Last year in Congress, seniors in Ohio and around the country found themselves under attack because of an extreme right-wing budget proposal. Sherrod didn't blink an eye before standing up to those who were ready to end Medicare as we know it, and his efforts to squash that dangerous budget show his unwavering commitment to keeping the promises we make to our seniors.

Last year, as our families endured an assault on workers' rights, Senator Brown was an outspoken advocate for our teachers, fire fighters, police officers and other public employees. These men and women are not weights pulling us down, they are the foundation of our communities.

On yet another issue central to middle class families, when hundreds of thousands of Ohio's auto industry jobs were hanging in the balance, Sherrod showed true leadership and fought to pass the auto rescue that helped get our state's economy back on the right track.

When it comes to supporting Ohio jobs, affordable education, seniors, and our voting rights Sherrod Brown takes a backseat to no one. Ohio has a true champion in Senator Brown, and it's time we do our part to stand up for him.

Rep. Szollosi Receives Legislator of the Year Award from FOP of Ohio Recognized for Leadership in Fight for Workers' Rights

Special to The Truth

The Fraternal Order of Police of Ohio presented State Representative Matthew A. Szollosi (D-Toledo) with the Ohio House of Representatives Legislator of the Year award today. The award was presented to Rep. Szollosi at the 78th Annual Conference in Cleveland, Ohio.

"I am proud to stand with our safety forces because they put themselves in harm's way everyday to keep us safe. Decisions to close stations and reduce staffing levels concern me, especially when statistics show crime is on the rise. We should be giving our safety forces the tools they need to do their jobs safely, so they can go home to their families after each and every shift."

Rep. Szollosi was recognized for his leadership statewide last year in the fight against Senate Bill 5 which would have gutted Ohio's collective bargaining law. Rep. Szollosi fought to ensure that Ohio's safety forces maintained their ability to negotiate fairly for proper staffing levels, necessary safety equipment and job security. "Senate Bill 5, had it remained law, would have been terrible for workers," said Szollosi. "The Fraternal Order of Police did a great job educating the public about the true intent of the bill."

Senate Bill 5 was overturned by citizen referendum last November by a 61-35 margin.

Kudos to Toledo Urban Federal Credit Union

It's exciting to read about the continued growth and success of the Toledo Urban Federal Credit Union.

Blessed with wise and dedicated leadership, I am certain that even bigger and brighter days are ahead for this community-focused financial institution.

As a side bar to your article's history of TUFUCU, I would like to add that TUFUCU was one of the first commercial entities in Toledo to contract with my then newly-formed construction company. TUFUCU's vote of confidence in a small, minority-woman-owned business will always be appreciated.

Here's to many, many more years of success and prosperity as TUFUCU continues to be a shining example in our community.

Opal Dunlap's Latest Play Opens This Weekend at the Maumee Indoor Theatre

Sojourner's Truth Staff

When Opal Dunlap was 16 years old – she's a ripe old 18 years of age now – and teaching vacation bible school at St. Paul Missionary Baptist Church, she was tasked with writing a skit for her class. That proved to be the start of her career as a playwright.

"I took it home, re-read the skit and said 'this is good,'" she recalled recently as she prepared to open her third play in as many years. "I ended up turning it into a full-length play."

That play would be a Christian dramatic play titled If There Is a Will, There Is a Way. Her initial offering was produced in April 2011 at the Collingwood Arts Center, by Dunlap herself. Written, produced, directed and starred in by Dunlap herself, in fact.

Shortly thereafter, Dunlap wrote her second play - Staircase to Heaven: Love, Faith, Prayer – that was produced in November 2011.

Now comes, in rapid succession, play number three – God Knows My Needs – which will be presented this Saturday, July 21, 2012, at the Maumee Indoor Theater.

Her latest is about two sisters who have lost their mother at an early age. The tragedy has forced the older girl to care for her younger sibling. The older – smart, religious, determined – is in college and holding down a job. The younger – stubborn, disrespectful, easily influenced by the wrong elements – is without standards or values. She falls under the influence of the neighborhood drug dealer.

Further complicating the situation is the drug dealer's brother who once dated the older sister, is the opposite of his brother and wants to prevent the younger sister from damaging herself in a destructive relationship.

Dunlap, amongst her playwrighting duties over the past few years, has found the time to graduate from Bowsher, participate in the NAACP ACT-SO competition (local gold medalist), serve as president of the local Top Teens of America chapter, serve as president of the National Association of Negro Business and Professional Women for Toledo Youth Club locally and do a little two step or three as a debutante in the 2012 Cotillion.

Throw in quite a lot of community service and founding her own theater company – L'apo Theatrical Productions – and you have the makings of a pretty full life during for those first 18 years.

Next fall, Dunlap will enter The University of Toledo (fulfilling a long-time dream) to major in theater, of course. She will earn a minor in theology.

God Knows My Needs will be performed this Saturday at 7 p.m. Tickets are $7 in advance and may be purchased through Dunlap at 419-480-7603 or at the door on Saturday for $10.

Academy of Educational Excellence Opens Temple of Learning

Sojourner's Truth Staff

Next to the Stranahan Theater on Heatherdowns Blvd. rests the former Masonic Temple. Ann Harris, owner and operator of the Learners for Life Day Care Center, has taken over the building and is in the process of converting it into a temple of learning – a charter school that will serve kindergarten to third graders.

The Academy of Educational Excellence will open in the fall under the guidance of Harris, who retired from Toledo Public Schools after a 32 and a half year teaching career, and Chief Academic Officer Sam Harris, formerly of The University of Toledo and, most recently, Star Academy, where under his leadership the school moved from academic emergency on the State of Ohio report card into the continuous improvement category in one year.

Why was Harris eager to take on such a challenge – entering the competitive educational market and converting such a facility into one filled with classrooms?

"My passion for children," said the former teacher. After retiring from TPS in 2006, Harris started Learners for Life and within two years earned for the day care center a rating of two stars (out of three) from the State of Ohio – a rare accomplishment.

"Parents were so thrilled that they kept asking me, 'can you open up a kindergarten, we don't want to leave you,'" continued Harris.

That wish becomes a reality in a few short months. Harris and Hancock are utilizing "Success for All" as the Academy's chief curriculum. "It has been researched and presented around a number of states as the best program for at-risk students," said Harris.

Promising a heavy focus on literacy and technology, Harris noted that the Academy, which will start through the third grade and then add a grade a year thereafter, will be tuition free, will have state of the art technology for students, will offer a foreign language and will have after school tutoring and extracurricular programs as well as parent programs.

The school will also offer free bus transportation to a large part of the city.

Two hundred students are the goal for the Academy of Educational Excellence, said Harris. Informational meetings continue in July and open houses will be held on August 9, from 5 to 8 p.m., and August 11, from 10 a.m. To 2 p.m.

Eighth Annual African American Festival: The Biggest Hit Thus Far

Sojourner's Truth Staff

Bigger and better than ever, the annual African American Festival made its eighth appearance this past weekend at The University of Toledo's Scott Park Campus.

Anchored by Harold Melvin's Blue Notes on Saturday and the Rance Allen Trio on Sunday, the entertainment at this year's event brought the audience to their feet time and time again.

The weekend's events began on Friday morning with the kickoff prayer breakfast. This year's breakfast was held at the Serenity Soul Food Restaurant on Nebraska Avenue and pastors such as Bishop Duane Tisdale, Bishop Brehon Hall and Bishop M.C. McGhee led the attendees in praying for the success of the Festival, the community and the Toledo Urban Federal Credit Union, the organizing agency of the annual Festival.

On Saturday morning at 10 a.m. the annual parade started at the corner of Dorr and Smead and headed east towards the finish at Dorr and Collingwood. Elected officials, political candidates and a variety of schools and agencies took the short walk through the neighborhood. The parade had in the past taken place mainly on Nebraska Avenue. The route was altered for the first time this year.

The Festival itself opened at 1:00 p.m. on both Saturday and Sunday. Dozens of vendors staked out their places around the stage. Vendors offered food, clothing, insurance, arts and crafts aplenty. There were also a number of schools – public and charter – explaining their programs.

Saturday's entertainment began with students from Imagine Schools followed by the vocal stylings of Dezire.

Jesse Coleman and the Jamm Band then brought their jazz music to the stage.

Athena Johnson & Friends appeared next, then came Bobby G., the bluesman.

Cherrelle, who had several chart toppers in the 1980's, followed Bobby G. and reminded the audience of her glory days in R & B.

The evening's last act – Harold Melvin's Blue Notes – took the audience much further back in time, and the audience loved every minute of it. The crowd, which had by then reached its peak, was on its feet during the entire last act.

On Sunday, the entertainment was gospel – lots of gospel.

The Toledo Youth Choir, Cornerstone Church Choir and the Toledo Interfaith Mass Choir started the ball rolling, before Darius Coleman and his friends took

Fair Housing Announces Second Largest Fair Lending Settlement

Special to The Truth

Shanna L. Smith, president and CEO of the National Fair Housing Alliance, issued the following statement after the U.S. Department of Justice announced the second largest fair lending settlement in U.S. history, resolving allegations that Wells Fargo engaged in large-scale mortgage lending discrimination against African-Americans and Latino borrowers from 2004 to 2009:

“The National Fair Housing Alliance applauds the Department of Justice for holding Wells Fargo accountable for widespread discriminatory lending practices that we know have damaged communities across the country and undermined our nation’s mortgage market. Borrowers were charged higher prices and placed in riskier loans not because of their credit histories, but because of the color of their skin. The settle-

“The actions of many of our nation’s largest lenders have also led to a large inventory of bank-owned properties that are not being properly maintained or marketed in communities of color. As a result, many municipalities are left with a declining tax base and neighborhoods are ditional Fair Housing Alliance published a report documenting how major banks have engaged in racial discrimination in the maintenance and marketing of bank-owned properties, The Banks Are Back – Our Neighborhoods Are Not: Discrimination in the Maintenance and Marketing of REO Properties and filed a Fair Housing Act complaint against Wells Fargo for engaging in this unlawful practice. The report’s recommendations focus on keeping borrowers in their homes and strengthening neighborhoods through continued homeownership rather than investor purchases.

“We applaud the Department of Justice for requiring the nation’s largest originator of home mortgages to conduct an internal review of its retail mortgage lending practices. Discrimination is not only wrong, but it creates wasteful inefficiencies in our struggling economy. The practice must stop as it is not consistent with our American values of fairness and equality.”

United Way Investing $12.9 Million in Northwest Ohio Community

Special to The Truth

Last month, United Way of Greater Toledo announced its 2012-13 investment decisions. Thanks to the generosity of the community, $12.9 million will be invested in programs, initiatives, and partnerships advancing the common good in Lucas, Wood, and Ottawa counties.

United Way volunteers were able to direct $8.6 million toward its goal of graduating kids through strategies in education, income, and health, while donors designated the remaining $4.3 million to programs and organizations of their choice.

“We continue to be grateful to this generous community for their gifts of time, talent, and treasure,” said Jane Moore, United Way of Greater Toledo’s interim president & CEO. “I believe donors continue supporting our vital work because they recognize the collective nature of how United Way is attacking community issues at the root and working to advance the entire community.”

“We truly believe increasing graduation rates is the key to our community’s long-term sustainability and success,” Moore continued. “We have also identified the barriers to a student’s success usually lie in the areas of education, income – or family financial stability – and health, which is why our strategies are focused on these building blocks.”

According to United Way, you won’t see significant changes to this year’s investments. Volunteers are pleased with the progress and confident investments are on the right track.

“As we continue to focus and coordinate all of our work toward that ultimate goal of helping graduate kids, I couldn’t be more pleased with the outcome of our decisions,” said Cindy Dana, United Way’s Community Impact Cabinet co-chairman. “The level of thought our volunteers have put into making strategic investment decisions that maximum the impact on our community is incredible. Donors can rest assured their gifts are making a measurable difference.”

Below are several highlights of the way strategies and programs in education, income, and health are helping remove barriers to kids graduating from high school.

Not Employed Yet? Network!

By Tiffany L. Reynolds, Job Coach and Project Coordinator
The Truth Contributor

I need a job!
In my experience, this statement is used more often than any other.

My name is Tiffany Reynolds. As the job coach and project coordinator with the Economic Opportunity Planning Association of Greater Toledo, Inc. (EOPA), my awesome duty is to help job seekers learn how to sell themselves to employers or, better said, "become more employable."

Although the economy has been in decline for several years and employment opportunities have been sparse, believe it or not—jobs are out there. It's similar to finding the right person for you. The key word is the "right" person.

It's often a challenge but it's important to keep trying. I'm an optimist—I believe the "right" job is out there for you—it just may take a little longer to find but it's out there.

One of the best ways to seek for a job is to network and volunteer. Networking is the informal sharing of information among people who have common interests.

One person asked me the question, how often should one network? I replied, daily. Always be prepared and ready to share your 30-second commercial—you never know when opportunity strikes. The 30-second commercial is a script you recite that summarizes who you are, your profession and your closing statement. Before you walk away from your potential employer—be sure to schedule an interview.

It's important to be familiar with your 30-second commercial because you may be approached at any given moment. The name of the game is to be at the ready.

Volunteering is often frowned upon when I recommend this idea to job seekers. The customer doesn't often see the value until I explain it.

Essentially, a volunteer is offering to serve or work without expecting monetary payment. However, there are alternate ways volunteers do receive payment, i.e. internships.

Here are its benefits: Firstly, the opportunity to meet staff and network, of course! Additional benefits include development of new skills, an enhanced resume, new work experience, greater self-esteem and self-confidence, meeting new people, feeling valued and having made a difference in someone's life.

Wow, now that's receiving payment with payback! This may not be the best route for some people. However, if you're not working the best way to fight discouragement is to keep busy and focused. So volunteer!

My motto to the unemployed: "giving up isn't an option."

If you want more information please visit the job coach at 505 Hamilton, Toledo, Ohio each Tuesday at 2:00 pm to learn more on how the Employment Readiness Training will work for Childhood Partnership between Harbor, Read For Literacy, Inc., and the YWCA of Greater Toledo is entering its second year of implementation. This partnership brings together experts in social and emotional health, early literacy, and child care to ensure we are wrapping children, birth to five, with the resources and supports necessary to enter Kindergarten ready to learn. With a focus on children, teachers, and parents, early results are indicating significant improvements.

The highlight of United Way's income work this year is Financial Coaches. Through various partners and collaborations like Bank On Toledo, East Toledo Family Center, and United North ONE Village Financial Opportunity Center, we are providing classes and training, one-on-one coaching, resources, and help in teaching individuals and families to become financially stable. The key to the coaching is assisting individuals in determining their own financial goals. By deciding their own path, families are empowered to reach their own aspirations.

In the health area, a new investment is the Medical-Legal Partnership for Children with Legal Aid of Western Ohio. While we invest in many programs directly impacting kids' access to health care services, a child's health is often negatively affected by social and environmental conditions that medical care alone cannot remedy. Through direct legal assistance, institutional and systemic policy change, this project addresses the non-medical issues related to health, including housing conditions, education, and poverty.

Another new health investment is the School Nutrition Support and Advocacy program with the Children's Hunger Alliance. While lunch is vital to a child's health, breakfast has long been recognized as the most important meal of the day. This investment

An Economist Gets Lunch: New Rules for Everyday Foodies by Tyler Cowen

c.2012, Dutton

$26.95 / $28.50 Canada

293 pages, includes index

By Terri Schlichenmeyer
The Truth Contributor

The fridge was empty the other day.

No milk, no OJ, no breakfast fixin's. You were out of bread, cereal, snacky stuff, and lunchmeat. There was barely a crumb for supper, either, so it was off to the grocery store for you.

Yes, the fridge was empty the other day. And now your wallet is.

You have to eat, and you'd rather eat well. So how do you do it with economy in mind when the economy stinks? Grab An Economist Gets Lunch by Tyler Cowen and get some lessons.

Every now and then, says author Cowen, the world needs a "special kind of revolution" in food. It happened with Upton Sinclair, it occurred with the perfection of frozen food and the invention of the microwave. Today's changes will "happen only gradually" but it's possible to eat better now "for your own good and for everyone else's."

First of all, throw out all the fads: delete "locavore" from your vocabulary and forget about "slow food." Eating locally is not always, economically speaking, a good idea and it's not always the best choice, environmentally. You can, furthermore, eat fast food cheaply and nutritiously, as long as you're willing to expand your definition of "fast food."

What's important to remember, he says, is that we're eating better than ever before. Yes, obesity is a problem here but we aren't starving. Many world-citizens can't make that claim.

To find "better eating," Cowen says to remember this principle: "Food is a product of economic supply and demand, so try to figure out where the supplies are fresh, the suppliers are creative, and the demanders are informed." This, he says, will help you make every meal count and it will help you understand that the best food doesn't have to empty your wallet.

Remember that ambiance and presentation often have nothing to do with the taste of the food. Shop at ethnic markets and don't be intimidated. Keep in mind that politics has a lot to do with the price of what you eat. Become educated about "cross-subsidy" food and learn to spot a trendy restaurant before it becomes trendy. And remember that much of what we produce and you eat has economic and environmental domino-effects on every other country in the world.

No doubt about it, An Economist Gets Lunch is a joyful book. Author Tyler Cowen is funny and flippant, and his wry observations are a delight for foodies and everyday consumers alike.

The problem comes if you're expecting a lot about economy here, because there isn't much. Cowen is a professor of economics at George Mason University, but his food critic side-interest consumes the majority of this book. That doesn't make it bad in any way, but it might disappoint readers who expect something more serious and less edible.

Still, I definitely think this is a book that might change the way both kinds of readers perceive that which is on their plates. What's in An Economist Gets Lunch will, in fact, give you lots to chew on.

Come in and take control of your finances.

Job Opportunities for Ohio's Veterans

By U.S. Senator Sherrod Brown

Service members – already armed with the discipline and skills needed to strengthen the 21st Century economy – should not have to struggle to find a job when their military service ends. These heroes who fought for our country shouldn't have to fight for work when they come home.

And yet, unfortunately many do. As citizens, we have a responsibility to do something about the thousands of older veterans who are jobless or underemployed.

That's why the Veterans Retraining Assistance Program (VRAP) – a joint Department of Veterans Affairs and Department of Labor training initiative – is so important.

Last year, Congress passed the VOW to Hire Heroes Act, which honors our government's obligation to our veterans. VRAP is a critical component of the law.

VRAP provides unemployed veterans between the ages of 35 and 60 the opportunity to pursue training for new careers in high demand occupations.

While the entire list of VRAP high-demand occupations can be found on the VA website, some include:

- Welders, chemical plant operators, painters
- Law enforcement, firefighters, emergency medical technicians
- Construction, electrical technicians, flight attendants
- Paralegals, Legal secretaries, administrative support
- Teachers aides, library technicians, counselors

These opportunities are wide-ranging. And in fact, as of July 12, more than 31,000 applications nationwide have been received for the VRAP program. However, the program is limited to 99,000 participants through March 31, 2014.

Because applicants will be approved on a first come, first serve basis, we all must do everything we can to spread the word to eligible veterans in Ohio. This is a great opportunity that Ohio veterans deserve.

According to the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs, in order to qualify for the program, a Veteran must:

- Be at least 35 but no more than 60 years old
- Be unemployed
- Have an other than dishonorable discharge
- Not be eligible for any other VA education benefit program (e.g.: the Post-9/11 GI Bill, Montgomery GI Bill, Vocational Rehabilitation and Employment Assistance)
- Not be in receipt of VA compensation
- Not be enrolled in a Federal or state job training program

And while participants are required to be enrolled in a VA-approved education program, here in Ohio, we're lucky to have 23 community and technical colleges that have already been approved.

Each of these schools offers programs which lead to an Associate Degree, Non-College Degree, or a Certificate, and include training for a high-demand occupation. Veterans can enroll at each of these colleges using VRAP assistance.

We need to spread the word about training programs, like VRAP, that will help provide our veterans with the necessary skills to find good paying jobs.

By raising awareness of veterans' jobs services and better coordinating the range of resources available to them, we can help improve job prospects for America's heroes.

To find out more about the VOW to Hire Heroes Act, please visit <http://www.benefits.va.gov/VOW/>.

If you have any other questions regarding veteran services, please contact my office at 888-896-OHIO (6446) or visit www.brown.senate.gov for additional information.

State Route 51) in Millbury and (9920 Old U.S. 20) in Rossford. The 19 community locations expand the College's educational initiative for individuals to drop off their donations. Among the charitable items that will be accepted as part of the school supply drive are gently-used or new backpacks, crayons, markers, bottles of glue, glue sticks, colored pencils, pencils, pink erasers, school boxes, pocket folders, marbled covered composition books and Kleenex tissues.

According to Kaye Koenig, Owens Alumni Association Community Service Chair, the Northwest Ohio community's initial response toward the "Backpack to the Future" Supply Drive has been very positive.

"Owens' 'Backpack to the Future' school supply drive initiative has expanded efforts thanks to the support of Books-A-Million, Directions Credit Union, Genoa Bank and Great Lakes Credit Union," she stated. "I encourage area residents to lend a helping hand to those children who are in need of school supplies."

Since establishing the program in 2004, the Owens Alumni Association has given 2,356 backpacks and 42,661 school supplies to benefit disadvantaged children throughout Northwest Ohio.

Since opening its doors in 1965, Owens has provided higher education to more than 250,000 students. Owens' Alumni Association is committed to the personal and professional success of alumni and students through the ongoing development of value-added initiatives.

In addition to the community supply drive locations, area residents can bring their charitable donations to the College's Office of Alumni Relations on the Toledo-area Campus in Perrysburg Township, the Education Center Atrium on the Findlay-area Campus in Findlay and the Arrowhead Park Learning Center in Maumee. For more information about the school supply drive, or to make a donation, contact the Alumni Relations Office at (567) 661-7876, 1-800-GO-OWENS, Ext. 7876 or alumni@owens.edu.

Lookin For Myself Usher

By Michael Hayes
Minister of Culture

Vocally, rank these singers from best to worst:

R. Kelly. Usher. Trey Songz.

That's basically a ranking I posted on facebook a week or so ago.

Multiple comments ranked the homie Usher Raymond IV as the pre-eminent singing talent among those listed. I am inclined to agree that through the years his voice (at least on record) has remained pristine and rich. It actually has seemed to get better with age (not that much age cuz he and I were born the same year. Lol).

Even though he's had a few misses in recent years, his catalog has more hits than a Mayweather round. With over 60 million records sold, Usher is one of the most successful artists in recorded music history. In this day and time he also stands a testament to 90's music icons who have stayed relevant even while much of the industry's landscape has changed beyond their ability to adapt.

LaFace Records was a boutique label. Started around the same time as Bad Boy, it was a producer-run company headed by L.A. Reid and Babyface. Just think about all the talent under that roof all at one time: Outkast, T.L.C., Toni Braxton and Usher.

Not just break-out acts, but literally musical game changers who have had some of the most successful careers of our generation. If you follow his story, you

Had a few starts and stops along the way but it all came together by his second album headed by Jermaine Dupri entitled, "My Way".

After having a decade-long run of hit records, multi-platinum sales and dominating your lane in the game... even if someone DID fall off just a little bit, can you really hate?

No sophomore jinx. No uncharacteristically low sales. No inability to chart.

know that young Raymond was in the industry basically right after hitting puberty.

So you're talking about someone who has been winning nonstop since the mid 1990s. You're talking about someone with multiple plaques for his own hits, plus multiple plaques for collaborations with everyone from Lil Jon to Puffy and more.

Yea, the song he did with Gucci was awful.

Hell, I didn't even like the "OMG" joint from two years ago with Will.I.Am.

But I still can't front on Usher or his ability to make hits.

Which brings us to summer 2012.

He already killed us with that "Climax" joint and now he's got two Rozay features pulling double duty cross promoting albums from each artist. "Touching You" is sublime, but it's just a warm up compared to "Lemme See." Built for the clubs yet subdued and calm, it has that mood setting vibe we have come to expect from Drizzy.

Even though the lyrics are slightly gimmicky and aimed at radio's need for catchy simplicity, the genius in this song is how it makes use of Usher's superior vocal ability. It's commercial yet artistic. Since I love that kind of synergy, I was wondering if the entire album could meet the high expectations set by the singles and I'm here to tell everyone reading this that the album completely delivers on all levels.

"Can't Stop, Won't Stop" finds Will.I.Am. proving once again they can do that international Pop N B just as well as Breezy and Rih Rih. It becomes obvious in the first two songs that you should start out listening to this in the car.

It's perfect for road trip music because it's exciting, impressive and somewhat carefree.

But you're going to notice a complete shift once "I Care For You" comes on.

The fourth song is when ish gets real.

As usual, Danja Hands did not come to play. The musical production on this joint is out of this world. It stands apart from anything you have heard this year, trust me.

A few more tracks in you will notice that there is a theme building, an unspoken agenda.

Through each track, the vocal arrangement is handled by the same person... someone named Natural is working his/her way through this entire album using Usher's voice like paint on a canvas.

Lookin For Myself has the expected Pharrel/Usher collaboration, a song entitled "Twisted" which may take some getting used to.

But Usher's song "What Happened To U" with Drake's producer Noah "40" Shebib is where you realize you love this album.

Stop complaining that music isn't as good as it used to be and start supporting the artists who actually are doing their part to give listeners quality.

Over the years we have heard Usher try the live band sound, the club sound, and experiment with bridging genres.

Now he's found a new lane that fits him well and it deserves a listen.

The true grade for Lookin For Myself is B.
