The old expression “numbers never lie” and many other malicious myths concerning the public portrayal of African Americans were dispelled last week in a public lecture at The University of Toledo by esteemed historian Khalil Gibran Muhammad, Ph.D.

This community enlightenment took place on the heels of the racially-charged discourse of black pathology spewed by Congressman Paul Ryan (R. WI) and Bill O’Reilly of Fox News.

“We have got this tailspin of culture, in our inner cities in particular, of men not working and just generations of men not even thinking about working or learning the value of the culture of work,” said Ryan in a radio broadcast and citing the work of Charles Murray – a conservative who argues that black intelligence is genetically inferior to that of whites.

Muhammad is the executive director of the Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture in New York City and author of The Condemnation of Blackness: Race, Criminality and the Making of Modern Urban America.

In Condemnation of Blackness, Muhammad traces the seeds of today’s misinterpreted statistics-based racial analysis back to the turn of the century.

While preaching personal responsibility and ignoring socioeconomic conditions such as discriminatory laws, the overrepresentation of blacks in the prison system was interpreted as definitive proof of blacks’ inferior nature and pathology (p. 34). Conversely, Muhammad notes, white scientists and government experts sympathetically portrayed white criminality and self-destructive behavior as “a symptom of industrial capitalism and urban life that could be ameliorated through greater public and private investment in education, social services, social programs, and public infrastructure.” Rather than acknowledging problems with the societal system itself, interpretations pointed the blame solely at black individuals.

Southerners, used the data to justify “lynching, convict leasing, and political disenfranchisement” while Northerners used the statistics to “justify black joblessness, residential segregation and municipal government neglect of black neighborhoods” (p. 153).

“The sad part,” Muhammad stressed to the guileless audience, “is that the wiring of black inferiority is also inside of black people because we have bought into this misleading story. When Bill O’Reilly asked President Obama: ‘How come you don’t shame the gangsta rappers to stop encouraging black women into having babies out of wedlock?’ The president responded: ‘Every speech I’ve ever given to black audiences is exactly what you’re calling for.’ So Obama, O’Reilly and Paul Ryan are on the same page and that’s uncomfortable for most of us to accept,” said Muhammad. Despite the trend in public cas-

Well, we here go again. A former bastion of orthodox Christianity is again selling its birth rite for a mess of pottage… and the potage shows that the UMC in regards to its stance on gay marriage is naked and ashamed (or should be!).

If you understand that the UMC along with other major Protestant denominations are leaving their first love and are capitulating to the desire to be acceptable to the world, this article makes sense.

Nothing makes you want to avert your eyes more than a bloody car wreck or a church organization that professes a love of God but, at a moment’s chance, it goes ‘a whoring’ after other gods.

The UMC has, on their books, the belief that marriage is between a man and a woman but in reality they winked at that creedal statement when they had a recent chance to rebuke the former dean of the Yale Divinity School who officiated at his son’s gay marriage in 2012.

Rather than take this reprobate by the seat of his seats and toss him out until he repented, the NY chapter of the UMC, rolled over like a pet dog and let the world scratch its furry butt as part and parcel of their new paradigm.

The NY chapter of the UMC is setting the precedent that if you violate clear scripture mandates then simply use the artifice of, “love conquers all” to mask over the factions with the UMC that are determined to usurp scripture and to impose their own way of defining what God has already determined about who the parties to a marriage must be.

It is but a clear return to the Garden of Eden in which Satan, the accuser of God, told Adam and Eve that God must have been in error when He told Adam and Eve not to eat of the tree of knowledge of good and evil.

Satan told that gullible first family the now famous line of, “did God really say that?” The lie? If you eat of that tree, you will become like gods!

The rest is history. Adam and Eve went for the Okey-Dokey and sin entered the world.

You would think that any professing Christian group would take a somber message from that act of betrayal and be on high alert for any other incursions by Satan as to he undermining other statements made by God.

But no. The NY chapter of the UMC along with many other organizations that profess a belief in the Word of God, have taken it upon themselves to reimage and rewrite holy text to suit their own itching ears.

The UMC would rather hear the applause of man than the approval of God and so for them to tacitly condone gay marriage by their refusal to sanction this reprobate bishop, gives one cause for concern that the UMC is quickly sliding down that slippery slope wherein all of God’s pronouncements regarding moral conduct are up for one’s own private interpretation.

But check: God is sovereign and he does not rule by any major- ity vote done by his creation. He does not change his moral charac- ter based upon trying to be hip or cool, cultural differences or what’s politically correct.

He is not impressed by the arcane and false logic of people, like this Rev. Ogletree who would, with a straight face, say that he did what he did as an act of love.

Spare me the fetid baloney! He did what he did because he knew that the feckless NY chapter of the UMC would capitulate and turn a blind ear to what all likelihood do not have the “spiritual backbone” to expel this apostate from their midst.

I recently filed charges against a past local UMC bishop because he endorsed and championed the election of a person for a high level Methodist church job and which person was in a “committed relationship,” aka gay union.

For this local bishop, who, has thankfully moved on, being in a committed relationship trumps the issue of sin and therefore it is OK. Note: my charges were rebuffed after a hearing by a three bishop ruling body.

That is the kind of warped logic and thinking that is creeping in certain denominations who do not want to hold the line and nor do they have any fear of the inerrancy of scripture.

But, in closing, the above is to be expected since we are in the last days and in these last days, mockers will set up shop and try to shred the Word of God and cover their lies with intellectual gibberish… and we love it so!

Lucas County Administrator Breaks Ground as First Woman, First African American

By Linda Nelson
Sojourner’s Truth Reporter

Laura Lloyd-Jenkins never imagined that life’s circumstances and the decisions that she made because of them would lead her from California to Ohio and to one of Lucas County’s most important positions as steward of a $500 million budget and the manager of more than 3000 county employees.

Lloyd-Jenkins, 38, took the post as Lucas County Administrator on Feb. 4, 2013, replacing Peter Ujvagi, and becoming the first black, first woman and, possibly, the first person outside of Lucas County to be... appointed to the position. Now she serves as the nexus between the county commissioners, and the 10 county departments that she oversees.

Her journey to here began conventionally enough. Born and raised in California, Lloyd-Jenkins was one of seven children. She received a bachelor’s degree in business administration from California State University, Hayward and jumped into what she describes as “the lucrative business of the dot-com boom.”

Lloyd-Jenkins clearly remembers September 2011, and how the companies who had once been on top folded. She and her co-workers were told they no longer had jobs.

“We didn’t see it coming,” she said. “We were escorted to our vehicles by security.” It would be six months before she found employment. “I lived off savings and unemployment until someone told me about a job opening in the Human Resource Department in Alameda County.

“I took the job thinking it would be temporary while I waited for the boom to end,” she said. It never did. Lloyd-Jenkins would work there for 11 years.

Along the way she got her MBA in strategic management — also from Cal State — moved to the department of Budget and Finance and met her husband, Cordell Jenkins, pastor of Abundant Life Ministries in Toledo. Still, she did not see herself where she is today. Even after her husband returned to Toledo, Lloyd-Jenkins had no immediate plans to join him.

“I always thought that I would work in the private sector and recruitment,” she said. “I was content with the long distance relationship with my husband, and with where I was.” But eventually she started to search for job openings on the Lucas County website. She had the qualifications and the experience, but it would be two years before the administrator position became available. Lloyd-Jenkins was chosen out of 100 applicants.

As administrator, Lloyd-Jenkins works under the direction of County Commissioners Carol Condra, Pete Gerkin and Tina Skeldon Wozniak. Her duties are multi-faceted, and encompass the enforcement and execution of board policies that include supervising and assisting heads of departments in their job function.

“We try to make collective decisions that benefit everyone,” she said.

Lloyd-Jenkins is also required to attend board meetings, give recommendations to the board concerning policies, and procedures, keep the board informed of the financial condition of the county, monitor department budgets and prepare new budgets for the fiscal year. Also, the administrator has the power to interpret county laws, rules and regulations to insure that county programs are within those laws through interactions with county prosecutor.

Currently the department is working on labor/wage negotiations, and Lloyd-Jenkins is hopeful that her team will be successful in the ability to give county employees, who have not had a wage increase in six years, raises. “Since there has been a slight uptake in county revenue we need to look at raises for employees,” she said. “When an employee has not received a raise in that long morale is clearly affected. We can’t forget about taking care of our employees.”

Another task that the office is working to fulfill in the near future is building a more efficient county jail. Lloyd-Jenkins says she would like to see the now nine-story building transformed to a more manageable and cost effective one-story facility. Right now they are looking at all of the elements needed in order to make this happen, including location, revenue options and staffing ratios.

The Toledo Unit of the NAACP will be holding its monthly meeting at a new location. The new address is 1326 Collingwood the former Ascension Church which is also home to the African American Legacy Project. The general membership meeting will take place Tuesday, March 11, at 7 pm. All are welcome to attend.
Welcome Spring! Welcome Health!

Patrice Powers-Barker, OSU Extension, Lucas County
The Truth Contributor

Are you anxious for springtime weather and the opportunity to spend more time outdoors? Are you ready to shed some extra layers of winter clothing and maybe shed a few extra winter pounds? What are your plans for a healthy springtime?

The Ohio Commission on Minority Health reminds, “Good Health Begins With You!” It’s the perfect time of year to celebrate good health.

The Toledo Lucas County Commission on Minority Health Calendar of Events lists over 27 local events covering topics from health fairs, youth camp, luncheon, book clubs and a game night. The April 5 Minority Health Kick-Off is scheduled from 9:00am – 11:00am at Mott Branch Library, 1085 Dorr Street, Toledo.

At the Kick-off, the 1 Million Healthy Steps program challenges participants to log at least one million steps with a pedometer in a 12-month period. For more information about the 1 Million Healthy Steps, contact Dennis Hicks at 419-213-4095. The 30-day Minority Health wellness campaign takes place during the month of April and part of the monthly goal is to support on-going efforts to improve minority health year round. The calendar of local events for the month of April can be found at http://minority-healthtoledo.org/ and on page 16 of this issue.

Are you a parent or guardian looking for a class to learn more about nutrition for your family? The Ohio State University Extension’s Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program (EFNEP) is partnering with the Martin Luther King Kitchen for the Poor starting on Friday April 4 from 1:00 p.m. - 2:00 p.m.

EFNEP is a free, eight-week nutrition education series for caregivers with children in the home and limited resources to learn about how to make healthy food choices, manage food dollars, and balance a healthy diet with physical activities. Participants will receive take-home tools, food samples and graduate with a Certificate of Completion from OSU Extension. For more information about the classes, contact Kelsey Johnson, 419-213-2022.

The Ohio State University Extension is also offering an online wellness challenge for the springtime. This is free to any adult with an email account and participants will receive educational email messages twice a week from April 7 – May 18, 2014. The themes for the 2014 email challenge are vegetables and fruits, physical activity, sun safety, local foods, herbs and gardening. To sign up online please visit http://go.osu.edu/SPLucas. For more information, contact Patrice Powers-Barker at powers-barker.1@osu or 419-213-2022.

Make a plan to attend at least one of the healthy events throughout April and celebrate your health! It’s important to take care of your health, learn more about wellness and join with others to make healthy lifestyle changes. Good nutrition is one key element of good health and it goes along well with physical activity and updated health screenings. Good health begins with you! Use these tips all year long to meet your health goals.

Enjoy your food but eat less. Add in physical activity throughout the day. Use a smaller plate for your meals and take the time to enjoy the smell and taste of your food. When adding physical activity to your day, make sure you’re doing at least 10 minutes at a time. Those 10 minutes will add up during the day and during the week. For adults, set a goal of at least 2 ½ hours of moderate physical activity a week. For teens and youth, make time for 60 minutes of physical activity every day. Remember, it all counts – walking places, active games, swimming, dancing, biking, etc.

Strengthen your bones with calcium-rich foods and activities such as lifting weights, walking or running. Foods like low-fat milk, yogurt, and dark leafy greens are naturally high in calcium and other foods may be fortified with calcium like orange juice or bread (check the nutrition label for added calcium). Any physical activities that are weight-bearing are great for your bones!

Limit foods high in fat and added sugar. Limit time sitting. Limit fatty meats like ribs, bacon and hot dogs. Sweets like cakes, cookies and ice cream should be an occasional treat. Choose smaller portions of high fat foods and choose them less often. Don’t sit for hours at a time. If you have a job that requires sitting, plan stretch breaks for your health and wellness. Do a few desk exercises and stand up occasionally.

Are You Taking the Right Vitamins and Nutrients?

Special to The Truth

If you eat a healthful diet, you may think you’re in the clear when it comes to supplying your body with vital nutrients. But some experts say that even the most well-rounded meal plans fall short.

“To get the amount of nutrients you need to thrive, you can’t rely on food alone. You really have to turn to dietary supplements,” says Michael A. Smith M.D., host of “Healthy Talk” on RadioMD.com and senior health scientist with Life Extension in Fort Lauderdale, Florida.

If you’ve ever walked through the supplement section of a natural foods store or done a quick search online, you know it can be easy to become overwhelmed by the choices. Making matters more confusing, everyone has different nutritional needs.

“With the exception of a few foundational nutrients, there’s no such thing as a one-size-fits-all supplement regimen,” says Smith, whose new book and educational tool, “The Supplement Pyramid,” seeks to help readers design a nutritional regimen that meets their unique needs. “Like food, it’s helpful to think of your supplement needs in a tiered pyramid structure: the foundational supplements we all need, personalized supplements based on your needs and optimal supplements for living healthier, longer.”

Smith is offering guidelines for getting started:

• Bootleg products on the market can do more harm than good. Invest in high-quality nutritional supplements. Stick with a company that has an established track record of using only pure, potent raw materials.

• There are essential foundational supplements that should build the base of most people’s plans, no matter what their unique needs are, Smith says. These include an ideally dosed multivitamin/mineral, omega-3 fatty acids, coenzyme Q10 (as ubiquinol) and probiotics. Check with your doctor before starting a supplement regimen.

• Everybody has their own personal medical history and health needs. With do-it-yourself detective work, you can arm yourself with the facts you need to personalize your supplement plan for disease prevention.

Beyond taking a personal and family medical inventory, certain laboratory tests can help you discover what’s going on inside your body. Additionally, “The Supplement Pyramid” contains a series of medical quizzes based on clinical risk assessments in different areas including heart health, cognitive function and immune strength.

• After providing your body with core, foundational nutrients for survival and custom-tailored supplements to help prevent disease, consider optimizing your supplemental regimen with “anti-aging supplements” such as antioxidants, proteins and amino acids. These supplements form the top of your pyramid, and if you need to cut back on expenses, should be the first to go.

Getting started is simple. And the sooner you do, the faster you can begin properly nourishing and protecting your body from health risks.

For free tools to build your personal supplement regimen and for more information about Smith’s new book, visit www.MySupplementPyramid.com or call 1-855-870-0687.

Even if you juice every morning and hit the salad bar at lunch every afternoon, don’t be lulled into nutritional complacency. By learning more about your body’s needs, you can live a longer, healthier, happier life.

“Why do we insist on comparing black youth to white youth? As long as we compare blacks to whites, blacks are going to lose because it is tied to historic in-equality,” he asserted. “Why don’t we look at black kids as low, middle and high achievers and study what works when black youth succeed and excel in school?” The answer is that we don’t have that kind of data. We don’t collect black vs. black data. We only collect data versus whites, which was designed as a losing proposition from the beginning.”

Of the performance gap that exists between Asians and whites, he said: “We don’t view that gap as an indicator of white failure, only as a commentary on our national lack of educational achievement. It is because the problem of public education is narrated through a lens of black underachievement.

“The reality is that there is also a huge failure rate on the part of our white children that cuts to the core the story that we tell about ourselves and our destiny. And until we own the counter narratives and articulate them, that’s not going to change.”

The question is: How can we “bust” the malicious rumors and conservative trafficking in myths of black pathology?

Several challenges greet any attempt to change the public narrative or implement quality pro-

Take Action and Get Healthy

By Angela Steward, Fitness Motivator

The Truth Contributor

Are you ready to make a change?

I have worked with women of all ages and sizes to help them lose weight, to regain self-confidence and to help them believe their fitness goals can be accomplished if they make decisions with their heart and take action. To stop talking about getting healthy, to take action and get healthy. In other words: DON’T TALK ABOUT IT, BE ABOUT IT!

Too often we want, we wish, we yearn to get healthier, but soon self-doubt clouds those thoughts. Our minds hold us captive! Distractions then enter into our thoughts, and soon the desire of a healthier new lifestyle becomes impossible!

If this is you, are you ready to make a change? Are you ready to step out of the uncomfortable shell that holds the healthier new “you” captive? Then join me and so many other women who once felt those same feelings! Join a program that’s designed especially for you!

My fitness program is designed for women only! We don’t exercise to get skinny; we exercise to get healthy! I don’t teach living your life to be skinny, I teach living your life to enjoy all things, one of which for me happens to be food… yum! I know there are many fitness instructors out there who teach and live the “skinny” life, and I applaud and support them whole-heartedly. But for me, it’s not realistic! It’s just not for me! I like a little junk in my trunk and so does my husband… lol!! But I also know that by exercising daily, and by eating the foods I love in moderation, while exercising three to five days per week, I’m happier, healthier, and 70 pounds lighter!

All of my clients have lost unwanted pounds, some over 130 pounds! I encourage them to make small adjustments in their eating habits. Drink more water. To enjoy their favorite food 20 percent, but make healthier food choices 80 percent. In other words, make healthier choices five days a week, and eat the foods you love in moderation, while exercising three to five days per week, and the majority of my clientele. Small changes can become lifestyle changes. Drastic changes are usually short-term!

So are you ready to make a change? From the calls, emails and text messages I receive daily, I’d be willing to bet you or someone you know is ready to not talk about it, but BE ABOUT IT!

Yes, a healthier like is going to take some work, yes it’s going to be inconvenient; yes you are going to be uncomfortable and sore. But you’re going to love the results, the feeling of accomplishment, the increase of energy, the easiness of zipping your favorite pair of pants. Take control of how you want to live the rest of your life - which could possibly be the best years of your life!

So come on, there’s nothing to it, if you’re read. I’ll be waiting to see you at the brand new Fabulous Fit!! Yes, we’ve made some changes too. We’ve moved from a space that held 35 women, to a space that accommodates 70+ women. More classes, more space, more choices! So you see, I had to stop talking about it; I had to do the dang thang!!!
Dear Ryan,

I am have been working hard on getting my legs to look better before summer time and it seems that I just can’t get a handle on them. I have been running, riding the stationary bike and eating very well. They are getting smaller but not looking any better. What’s the problem here, Ryan?

P.A.T.

Dear P.A.T.

A lot of women think that in order to lose weight they need to do a ton of cardio. Only to an extent is that true. You will lose weight but not the weight you want to lose from fat. You will lose muscle tissue (weight), which in turn will slow your metabolism, cause you to hold onto body fat and make you look flabby.

There is this large misconception that if you weight train you will look like a man. I have touched on this before in a few articles.

Ladies: “YOU HAVE TO WEIGHT TRAIN!” You will NOT get huge, you will NOT look like a man or lose your feminine qualities. Resistance training for women is very beneficial for several reasons. It increases your metabolism, reduces stress levels, lowers body fat, combats osteoporosis and fights depression.

That’s just a few, but the list goes on. You really need to add some weight training to your work outs in order to get the results you are seeking.

I recommend starting with five to 10 minutes of cardio of your choice and then moving into your weight training. Start with leg extensions to warm up your joints. Then move into squats. If you are not sure on your form, do the leg press instead. After squats move into a lunge followed by leg curls. Just starting out, I suggest doing two sets of 12-15 reps, learning to execute the exercise properly and feel the muscle. After you progress you can add weight, new exercises and switch the order around in which you do them.

You will notice a difference in your legs in a few short weeks providing you are also eating well. Give it some time and keep working towards your goal. Any change is a step in the right direction. Have a vision, stick to it and see it to the end.

Portman Expresses Concern over Proposed Medicare Advantage Cuts for 2015

U.S. Senator Rob Portman (R-Ohio) last week sent a letter to Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) Administrator Marilyn Tavenner expressing concerns over the proposed Medicare Advantage (MA) cuts for 2015. On February 21, 2014, CMS proposed payment and policy changes for MA plans. These payment changes include cuts in MA payments. These reductions come on top of cuts made just last year to the MA program and even more cuts included in Obamacare. The Administration’s historic strategy of provider cuts has always backfired and in the end does not reduce excess costs but only limits access to seniors.

I am deeply concerned, however, that the funding cuts proposed by CMS would undermine the high quality, affordable coverage that currently is available to seniors through the MA program. A new report by international management consulting firm Oliver Wyman estimates that implementation of the proposed cuts would leave MA enrollees facing premium increases and benefit reductions of $35-$75 per month in 2015, or $420-$900 for the entire year. These numbers translate into a 5.9 percent total cut to MA payments in 2015. Considering that MA funding cuts in the range of 4 to 6 percent are already being implemented in 2014, I am concerned that a second consecutive year of sharp cuts would be harmful to MA enrollees in Ohio.

I strongly urge you to reevaluate the proposed cuts and protect MA enrollees by maintaining current payment levels in 2015. I would appreciate hearing back from you regarding steps you will be taking to stabilize the MA program for seniors in Ohio and across the nation.

Four Things that May Help You Maintain Digestive Balance

Sherri Shepherd knows a thing or two about busy schedules and how they can complicate healthy intentions. Shepher, actress, comedienne, Emmy award winning co-host of “The View” and Align spokeswoman, is constantly on-the-go and has developed a few health resolutions that fit into her already packed life.

Hydrate

Hydration is key to overall health and wellness and is a simple substitute for any unhealthy beverages already being consumed. Water can help your body fight constipation and is great for your skin. Next time you have a soda craving, try water with lemon added for a healthy, flavorful hydrator.

Stay Healthy On-The-Go

Staying healthy when you are constantly away from home or running around town can prove to be challenging and stressful. After a long day, unhealthy options can seem more appealing and derail our healthy intentions. Preparation is the key to avoiding diet pitfalls. Carry a healthy snack with you or pencil in a stop at a healthy restaurant before you leave the house for the day.

Fortify Your System

Probiotics, the healthy bacteria found naturally in our bodies, are essential for many vital body functions and can help to build a healthy digestive system as well as maintain natural balance. But these bacteria are fragile and common issues such as changes in diet and schedule, stress, and travel can disrupt them.

“Juggling my busy schedule and the stress that sometimes comes with it can throw my body out-of-sync. Taking a probiotic supplement regularly is an easy way to maintain my digestive balance and keep me in my groove,” says Shepherd.

To learn more about how to naturally help build and support digestive health with probiotics, visit www.AlignGI.com.

Get Active

With life constantly throwing us curve balls and unexpected turns, it’s important to recognize the need for balance in life. Take time to relax and adopt healthy hobbies like meditation and exercise. Get gutsy and try something you’ve wanted to do, but never had the confidence to try – then bask in the sense of accomplishment you feel.

These steps, combined with small lifestyle changes, like staying hydrated and adding a probiotic supplement to your diet, can help contribute to overall health and well-being and keep your healthy goals attainable.

April 15 Deadline Approaching for 2014 Law and Leadership Summer Institute!

Special to The Truth

The Law and Leadership Institute (LLI) is accepting applications from current eighth grade students in Akron, Canton, Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton and Toledo! The 2014 Summer Institute will take place at the law schools in six cities across Ohio including Capital University Law School, The Ohio State University Moritz College of Law, The University of Cincinnati College of Law, The University of Dayton School of Law, The University of Toledo College of Law, Cleveland State University's Cleveland Marshall College of Law, Case Western Reserve University School of Law and the University of Akron School of Law.

The 2014 Summer Institute for current eighth grade students in Toledo will be held for five weeks Mondays-Fridays, June 23 – July 25, 2014 from 9:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m. at The University of Toledo College of Law. Supplies, meals and transportation (Metro bus pass) are provided FREE to participants. In fact, current eighth grade participants who successfully complete the five-week summer program will receive a stipend of up to $150!

What is the 2014 LLI Summer Institute? LLI is your opportunity to sharpen your skills while learning the secrets to thinking, writing, and speaking like a lawyer! You will learn techniques to improve your reading, writing and public speaking while learning how to deliver a persuasive statement like a real attorney in a fun and fast-paced environment. If you want to learn about being a lawyer or just want to improve your leadership skills and confidence, then this is the opportunity for you! Meet new legal professionals each day, attend field trips, enjoy games and participate in a mock trial.

Why LLI? LLI students are placed on the path towards success! LLI builds knowledge of the law while developing critical skills such as: analytical thinking, problem solving, writing, professionalism, leadership and public speaking all with a focus on college preparation. LLI programming introduces diverse youth to the legal profession and helps to prepare them for academic and career success. Students receive free ACT/SAT preparation and assistance with college planning. Last year’s graduating class had a 100 percent college acceptance rate and many with scholarships!

Space is limited! Applications are available on the LLI website: www.lawandleadership.org or from your school guidance counselor. Complete and return your application as soon as possible to secure your spot in this summer’s class. Completed applications may be returned by mail postmarked by April 15, 2014 to: LLI Selection Committee, 1700 Lake Shore Drive, Columbus, Ohio 43204; by fax: 614-485-3075 or by email: lli@lawandleadership.org.

Please visit the Law and Leadership Institute website for more information (www.lawandleadership.org) or call us with any questions: 614-485-3503. Our Program Director, Rachel Wilson, may be reached at rwilson@lawandleadership.org.

The Democratic Business and Professional Women’s Club

Special to The Truth

The Democratic Business and Professional Women’s Club of Lucas County will embark on a civic and political mode in making a difference.

On Saturday, April 19, 2014, State Senator Nina Turner, Democratic candidate for Ohio Secretary of State, will be the club’s guest speaker at a monthly luncheon at the Toledo Club. All women elected officials will be honored, including U.S. Representative Marcy Kaptur, who bears the honor of being the longest serving woman in Congress.

The event is open to the public due to the importance of this election year. For ticket information, contact Gail Austin 419-536-9554 or Lillian Scalia at 419-385-2072. Former County Commissioner Sandy Isenberg is club president. The organization was founded in 1975 by June Boyd and Sandy Isenberg.

programming that is not based on the black deficit model.

Like Muhammad, black scholars, social workers and activists before him such as W.E.B. Du Bois and Ida B. Wells used statistics and cutting-edge social research to defend blacks against popular racist assumptions by identifying white supremacy and discrimination as mediating factors. More black scholarship, although often not taken seriously until validated by respected white scholars, is needed.

As are vital but scarce financial resources.

“This work cannot be done on the cheap,” Muhammad insisted. “The work done by the sympathetic advocates for white criminals and their families was not free work but white philanthropy and government keep telling black people to pay for your own uplift because society can’t afford it. That’s the game we’re playing right now to obtain the type of critical programs that get inside the heads of our young people so their identities are strengthened and so they can speak truth to power.”

Finally, noted Muhammad: “Every civil rights leader and all of the first generation of anti-colonial leaders of free African nations were educated people. The Black Panther movement began on college campuses and in study groups. You have to be informed. The only way you’re going to authentically engage and create change is with more study and more analysis.”

Lucas County Empowerment Program

Special to The Truth

The Economic Opportunity Planning Association (EOPA) is now taking worksite and participant applications for the Lucas County Empowerment Program (LCEP) to provide approximately 700 Temporarily Assistance to Needy Families (TANF) eligible youth and young adults ages 16-24 paid training and work experience during eight week program sessions. Nine sessions are anticipated.

Each participant in the program will be assessed for access to employment. The training will encompass business communications professional demeanor, conflict resolution, goal setting and basic financial management.

Utilizing a rolling schedule LCEP plans to give participants more case management and job coaching than had been possible in past years. Additionally, partnerships with the public and private sector will include topics of civic responsibility such as voter registration, volunteerism and the Toledo Lucas County Public Library for outreach.

Byron Wynn at 419-213-2599.

Enrollment is ongoing now and may be made by calling Amanda Sharp at 419-244-7608 or Byron Wynn at 419-213-2599.

This program serves young adults between ages 16 and 24 years old with GED classes (if needed), mentors, work experience, job placement, post secondary assistance, financial literacy classes, case management and they are required to participate in community service.

The program helps youth to develop the competencies that young people need to be successful in their lives and contribute to their community, according to WSOS Employment and Training Coordinator Roger Fisher.

EOPA encourages potential employers to provide opportunities for these young people for what is often their first work experience. Good work habits are formed early and supervisors at the worksites are absolutely the key to putting young people on the right path.

Throughout the program, evaluations will be undertaken of the participant’s employment growth. Measuring their punctuality, work ethic, task completion and other basic work skills, LCEP will utilize these evaluations to encourage participants to improve their opportunities for future employment.

To be eligible to participate in the program participants must be between the ages of 16-24, have a minor child in the family household and be under 200 percent of the Lucas County Poverty Ratio. For example the income of a family of four must be under $3,975 monthly. Eligible applicants will be selected on a first-come, first-served basis.

Registration ends May 1, 2014 and openings are limited and will be considered by the date they are received. Applications should be completed and returned as soon as possible. To register please complete the Online application at: http://www.eopa.org/LCEP/home.html. Forms can be downloaded and sent to LCEP@eopa.org or by FAX 419-255-2149.

Rep. Ashford Remembers SB 5, Remains Vigilant of Policies that Hurt Working Ohioans

Three year anniversary of Gov. Kasich signing SB 5 into law sees new challenges

COLUMBUS — State Rep. Michael Ashford (D-Toledo) reflected on the GOP-led passage of Senate Bill 5 today, marking the three year anniversary of Gov. Kasich signing the bill into law. The law ended the rights of Ohio employees—educators, firefighters, police officers, prison guards, school employees, healthcare professionals and others—to collectively bargain for fair wages and safe work conditions. Ultimately, SB 5 was overwhelmingly overturned by a citizen-led repeal.

“The three years ago, Gov. John Kasich signed into law one of the most dangerous and unfair attacks on the rights of workers — SB 5,” said Rep. Ashford. “The Governor believed that he could successfully break the backs of middle class Ohioan’s by stripping away collective bargaining, but through the efforts of concerned citizens, volunteers and employees a successful repeal eliminated this unsafe law.”

Senate Bill 5 was widely panned as a politically driven attack, using the GOP’s stranglehold of state government to push through the attack on workers’ rights even in the face of vast public opposition. During the bill’s consideration, mounting public scrutiny of GOP motivations behind SB5 resulted in large Statehouse protests and impromptu closures of the Statehouse to the public—leading Democratic lawmakers to threaten legal action to reopen the Statehouse.

This General Assembly, the Ohio GOP has revived attacks on workers’ rights to collectively bargain with two so-called “Right to Work” bills.

Research has shown that so-called “Right to Work” restrictions strip workers of their rights and actually bring down wages and living standards in states where they are enacted. Aside from employees’ voices being collectively weakened, so-called “Right to Work” restrictions have been widely criticized as giving unchecked power to large, multinational corporations.

In addition, program staff will work with the youth and the courts to expunge their juvenile court records and divert their efforts to more productive activities. Some youth will be enrolled in the AmeriCorps volunteer program, which provides all enrollees with an educational stipend.

For information on how to participate in this program, call Roger Fisher at 419-334-8911 or email him at rafisher@wsos.org.
