Silent Sundays

...The black church’s conservative stance on women … (and) its failure to include gender and sexual orientation as oppressions which African Americans also face, makes (its) protests against racism merely myopic and anemic gestures for justice.

- Irene Monroe

With Millennials (those with birth dates between 1980 and 2000) abandoning our churches at an alarming rate, is it okay if we maintain a discrete silence on the issues that trouble them the most? Maybe we can’t achieve a rough consensus on the big issues; but can we at least get a lively conversation started?

At issue is the character of God. Does God love all of us, all the time, no matter what? Or will God favor a select few with the splendors of heaven while consigning unbelievers, and those born into the wrong religious culture, to the fires of hell?

This may strike you as a singularly crude way of stating the issue; but the Millennials streaming out of our churches don’t have a lot of theological tools to work with. All they know is what they hear from the small circle of Christian superstars who control the media microphone. Most of these young people want nothing to do with a God who damns LGBT people for being the way He made them. Nor are they interested in a deity who bars the pearly gates to non-Christians.

Most Millennials read the Bible randomly and with few contextual clues. They find themselves with nothing much to do and they see the black book sitting on the coffee table or the motel nightstand. Scuttling to mild curiosity, they open the black book and read a few sentences.

What do they find?

I just opened my Bible at a venture and here’s what I found:

Do not rejoice, all you Philistines, that the rod that struck you is broken, for from the root of the snake will come forth the adder, and its fruit will be a flying fiery serpent. The firstborn of the poor will graze, and the needy lie down in safety; but I will make your root die of famine, and your remnant I will kill. - Isaiah 14:29-30

Informed Bible students will recognize the familiar voice of the prophet Isaiah and will understand the reference to the Philistines and a rising Assyrian empire. We may also note God’s preferential love for poor and vulnerable people – a common biblical theme.

But the people turning their backs on organized religion are not informed Bible students. They read without context and catch the most dramatic details - the fiery serpent, death by famine, and the slaughter of the remnant. The takeaway: God is mad and determined to do some damage.

Having completed my experiment with random Bible reading, I just flipped on the television and checked out the first religious program I ran across. I learned that the Palestinians should stop asking for their own homeland because they are the descendants of Ishmael (the child of a slave woman), while the Jews are the descendants of Isaac (the child of promise). I also learned that God takes a dim view of Obamacare and that humans are constantly besieged by evil spirits. All this in five minutes.

Put all of this together and we see why Millennials are fleeing the church.

Ain’t nobody got time for a vengeful God with a knee-jerk preference for status quo politics. And that’s the only God they know.

Viewed against this cultural backdrop,

College Affordability: Simplifying the Process for Ohio’s Students

By U.S. Sen. Sherrod Brown

Last week, Ohio students started receiving their financial aid packages, containing information about the grants, scholarships, and loans available to them. The rising cost of college tuition means that more students will have to navigate the sometimes confusing process of applying for student loans.

Many students end up graduating with costly student loans that prevent them from making other investments like buying homes, starting businesses, or going to graduate school. Some of these costs could be avoided if students and their families had clearer information about how the loan process works.

Two-thirds of student loan borrowers don’t know the difference between safer, affordable federal student loans and private student loans, which carry more risk and have higher interest rates. Private student loans often have variable interest rates which can rise at any time and they are ineligible for federal forgiveness, cancellation or income-based repayment programs.

Despite these risks, most student borrowers don’t exhaust their federal loan options before choosing to take out private loans. With the average debt for 2012 Ohio college graduates totaling almost $30,000, students and their families deserve to have clear information about their options when it comes to paying for college. That’s why I cosponsored the Know Before You Owe Act.

This legislation would require colleges to inform borrowers of any available federal student aid before issuing certification for a private loan and would require lenders to clearly state the difference between students’ financial assistance and their cost of attendance. Lenders would also have to send loan statements to borrowers every three months and submit an annual report regarding student loans to the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB). The information that this act provides for students and their families will help them to make informed decisions about paying for college.

While preventing students from being indebted with costly loans when more affordable options are available is critical, we must also help graduates with existing private student loan debt. Because private loans offer fewer payment options than federal loans, many graduates find themselves overwhelmed by their monthly payments. My Re-financing Education Funding to Invest for the Future Act (REFI) addresses this problem by authorizing the Treasury Department to incentivize banks to refinance private student loans. Lowering the interest rates on private student loans would make students’ payments more affordable at no cost to taxpayers.

Higher education creates economic opportunity for Ohio’s students but student loan debt can create an unnecessary burden that can follow them through adulthood.

By reducing their student loan debt through clear information and lowered interest rates, we can ensure that Ohio’s graduates have a fair shot at the future.

FitzGerald Statement on Voter-Suppression Mid-Biennium Review Amendment

Democratic gubernatorial candidate and Cuyahoga County Executive Ed FitzGerald released the following statement on the Ohio House GOP’s amendment to the Mid-Biennium Review that would cut local government funds by 10 percent for any county that mailed out absentee ballots to their residents.

“The lengths the Republican leadership will go to prevent their fellow Ohioans from voting is astounding. The fact is they just can’t help themselves. Any opportunity to make voting more difficult for the poor, seniors, African Americans and working Ohioans is consistently and enthusiastically embraced by the Republicans in the General Assembly. And their plan to now punish the residents of communities who simply want to make voting easier is not only politics at its worst, it is a direct attack on how local governments pay for police, fire and other vital services. I would say they should be ashamed of their behavior but it is clear they have no shame.”
National Church Residences announced that Lucas Metropolitan Housing Authority (LMHA) has received approval for 35 Veterans Affairs Supportive Housing (VASH) project-based rental subsidy vouchers for The Commons at Garden Lake. This is the first VASH project-based approval in Ohio.

“The initial partnership and project concept in Toledo was spearheaded and supported by Congresswoman Marcy Kaptur who has a strong passion for serving veterans. It is a pleasure to see Congresswoman Kaptur’s vision come to fruition” says Linnie B. Willis, executive director of Lucas Metropolitan Housing Authority.

National Church Residences will develop, own and manage The Commons at Garden Lake, a 75 unit, permanent supportive housing community in Toledo for veterans. It is scheduled for completion in the spring of 2015. The Lucas County Veterans Service Commission will cover the cost of furniture for the units, and Veterans Matter will provide security deposits.

The vouchers were approved by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and will be administered by LMHA and the Veteran Affairs Ann Arbor Healthcare System (VA).

“We are grateful to have such supportive partners in assembling a much needed project to serve the homeless and disabled veterans of Northwest Ohio,” said Michelle Norris, president of National Church Residences’ Development Corporation. “In particular, Lucas Metropolitan Housing Authority and the Veteran Affairs Ann Arbor Healthcare System who made this approval of project-based VASH a first for Ohio.”

LMHA has a current allocation of 135 HUD-VASH Vouchers. The HUD-VASH program combines Housing Choice Voucher (HCV) rental assistance for homeless Veterans with case management and clinical services provided by the VA. The VA provides these services for participating veterans at VA medical centers and community-based outreach clinics.

The Commons at Garden Lake is the second of National Church Residences’ permanent supportive housing communities specifically for veterans. The first was the Commons at Livingston in Columbus. Phase 1 of that community opened in 2012, and Phase 2 opened in 2014.
“Race in Toledo” Forum Addresses Ways to Change Minds and Lives

Special to The Truth

“Racism affects every community and every person’s quality of life. It shows up in inequities between groups and in tensions among people from different ethnic backgrounds. In order to have healthy communities and a strong country, we need to face racism head on.” Dialogue for Change, the privilege.

The third installment of the “Race in Toledo” forum was held on April 3, at Central Catholic High School. The theme for the evening’s community forum was “Changing Minds, Changing Lives,” and the featured speaker was Ruby K. Payne, Ph.D., educator, and author of several books including Removing the Mask: Giftedness in Poverty, and Boys in Poverty: A Framework for Practice.

“The purpose of this meeting is to start a conversation,” explained Payne. “What people think about and how we spend our time determine what we know.”

Payne proceeded to describe some behaviors and causes that contribute to the division between class and race, through prevailing mind sets, and hidden rules. “At the micro level relationships are formed, and these relationships are how communities impact one another,” she said. Payne said that in order to develop and mend relationships between classes we must first understand the rules that every class has, learn how to navigate those rules, then have an open dialogue about what is needed at the lower level and, finally, make sure that those who are in poverty are included at the table.

“Money gets you out of survival mode but it doesn’t change thinking. Change comes through education, employment and social bridging with people who are different than you,” Payne said.

She also described the social mechanisms that contribute to the separation of people. “Money and class divide in a variety of ways and can determine how people think and react,” Payne said. “Poverty requires people to be reactive, non verbal and more aware of a person’s intentions.”

And poor people may have prevalent concerns about child care, food, health issues, the criminal justice system and the agencies that they must deal with in order to survive. While upper classes, who are more familiar with dealing with institutions, are more verbal, think more abstractly and are more proactive. Abstract thinking operates under assumptions that others feel or see things the way that we do,” Payne said.

ATTENTION: TPS Parents and Guardians

Dear TPS Parents and Guardians:

The weather during the past several months has certainly posed a significant challenge to school districts across the state of Ohio. In an effort to avoid extending the school year, as many other local districts have been forced to do, Toledo Public Schools recently presented several options to the Board of Education. The board approved the following plan:

Utilizing Blizzard Bags
• The Ohio Department of Education has granted school districts the option of making up three calamity days through the use of additional assignments that must be completed outside of school. These days can be offered on a retroactive basis, meaning they didn’t have to take place on the day(s) a district was out of school.
• TPS will utilize Blizzard Bags – work that will be assigned by your child’s teacher(s) and will be distributed the week of April 7th. Assignments will be given in every subject, making the Blizzard Bags equivalent to a full day of school. Students will have two weeks to complete the assignments to obtain credit.

• Completion of Blizzard Bag assignments is MANDATORY. If work is not completed, students will receive an unexcused absence that will ultimately impact overall year-end grades and attendance figures.

Adding time to the school day
• Elementary students need to make up 3.5 hours of instruction while high school students need to make up 4.5 hours.
• Elementary students will make up their time by reporting to school 15 minutes earlier, and staying 15 minutes later, on Thursday, April 24, Friday, April 25, and the entire next week – April 28 through May 2.
• High school students will make up their time by moving the exam schedule up by one day. That means that students will report according to regular exam schedule on the first three days: June 2 – full day with 7th hour exam at the end of the day. June 3 – Exams 1 & 2 and June 4 – Exams 3 & 4. They then must report to school from 8 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. on June 5 ONLY with the exam schedule that day as follows: 8-9:50 a.m. – Exam 5 & 6; 10-11:50 a.m. – Exam 7; 12:30 p.m. until 2 p.m. – locker clean out/lunch.
• PLEASE NOTE THE FOLLOWING EXCEPTIONS: Senior exams MUST be completed early due to graduation deadlines. Teachers will schedule senior exams to be completed by June 4. EHSO students MUST take their exams before June 5.

Cancelling the delayed starts
• TPS administrators canceled the pre-scheduled delayed starts in February, March, April and May. The Ohio Department of Education will count those hours toward the time the district is required to make up.

All of this, plus the four extra calamity days that the Ohio Department of Education has granted to school districts across the state – once they implement their contingency plans – means that Toledo Public Schools will still end the school year on Friday, June 6.

We do have some good news for you and your students. To help students successfully complete their assignments over spring break, a number of community agencies, including the United Way, the Boys and Girls Clubs and the YMCA –Community Hubs, will be offering educational-based support services to students during the week of April 14. Please check the enclosure for more details of those plans.

If you have any questions, please contact the principal at your student’s school. As always, we appreciate your support.

Sincerely,
Dr. Romules Durant
Superintendent/CEO

Times Change for Two TPS High School Graduation Ceremonies

Special to The Truth

The weather during the past several months has certainly posed a significant challenge to school districts across the State of Ohio. Yesterday, Toledo Public Schools outlined its contingency plans to make up lost instructional time for students.

Along with additional take-home assignments, or Blizzard Bags, TPS students still need to make up several hours of school time:
• Elementary students need to make up 3.5 hours of instruction.
• High School students need to make up 4.5 hours.

• This time will be made up by moving the exam schedule up by one day. That means that students will report according...continued on page 11
Service –Learning Grants Available for Organizations

State Farm® Youth Advisory Board (YAB) service-learning grant applications are available now until May 2. The grants range from $25,000 - $100,000 and are designed to create sustainable change in local communities across the United States. Public K-12, charter, higher education institutions, and non-profit organizations are eligible if they are able to demonstrate how they plan to impact student achievement within the public K-12 curriculum. All applicants must have a youth contact and adult administrator, as the programs must be youth-driven and youth-led. Each grant request must fall under one of these issue areas, chosen by the board itself:

- Community Safety
- Environmental Responsibility
- Financial Literacy
- Access to Higher Education
- Health and Wellness
- Arts and Culture

As of August 2013, seven years after the initial launch of the YAB, the board has awarded more than $28.6 million in grants to organizations in the U.S. and Canada and impacted approximately 16.1 million lives. PBS SERIES ON EDUCATIONAL CRISIS WINS A PEABODY

National Black Programming Consortium’s 180 Days: A Year Inside An American High School addresses the nation’s high school dropout problem

The National Black Programming Consortium (NBPC) documentary series, 180 Days: A Year Inside An American High School, which shines the spotlight on the nation’s educational crisis, has won a Peabody Award, the Pulitzer Prize of electronic media. Jacquie Jones, the executive director of NBPC, will be presented the award on May 19 at the Peabody Awards ceremony at New York City’s Waldorf-Astoria.

“We are very pleased to be acknowledged for a series we know has helped inspire much-needed dialogue around the many factors impacting vulnerable students in our public schools, including standardized testing and its effects on our students and educational institutions,” said Jones.

Over the course of a full school year, 180 Days follows a high school at the epicenter of the nation’s school reform movement. The two-part series offers a window into the struggles of five students at Washington Metropolitan High School—AKA DC Met—as they battle life’s challenges to graduate and succeed. The series also shows how the push for success in standardized testing is often at odds with the realities facing young people and the lengths to which the faculty must go to ensure their students are able to have... continued on page 13
Jazz Appreciation Month @ Kent Branch Library

By Rhonda B. Sewell, Library Media Relations Coordinator

For the seventh year, the Toledo-Lucas County Public Library is swinging out and blaring its horns to the up-tempo as we celebrate Jazz Appreciation Month via JAM 2014 from noon to 5 p.m. on Saturday, April 26 in the auditorium of Kent Branch Library Public Access Center, 3101 Collingwood Blvd. This year’s theme, Jazz Alchemy: A Love Supreme, pays tribute to the late saxophone legend John Coltrane.

This FREE celebration is organized by officials of Kent and the Art Tatum African American Resource Center, who will host members of the Professional Musicians of Northwest Ohio, Local 15-286. The daylong event will include live music, crafts and a snack bar.

Jazz is an American musical art form first started in the early 20th century in African American communities in the South. Its influence is based on West African and European traditions.

For more information, visit toledolibrary.org or call Kent Branch at 419.259.5340.

DO YOU BELIEVE IN A.N.G.E.L.S.?

An experience during childbirth led Lisa Canales to make a promise to God 18-years-ago. This promise became the driving force behind A.N.G.E.L.S. Outreach, an organization that provides assistance to area families. On May 2, the community will celebrate a journey that has brought area neighborhoods closer to help those in need of an angel.

Lisa and her daughter, AngelMia, and several generous businesses, organizations, and volunteers have made it their mission to provide food baskets to families during Easter, Thanksgiving, and Christmas. Now that the organization has reached “adulthood,” Area Neighbors Getting Envolved Lovingly and Spiritually – A.N.G.E.L.S. – is ready to grow and expand. The organization’s first formal fundraiser, City of the A.N.G.E.L.S., will take place at the Toledo Yacht Club on May 2, 2014. The organization’s premier fundraiser will not only provide the funds needed to allow A.N.G.E.L.S. Outreach to continue to provide food baskets, it will help the organization as it seeks to expand its services.

A.N.G.E.L.S. Outreach will rock the yacht club with Detroit LiveWire. The event will also feature specially priced drinks, a photobooth, a silent auction, raffles and more! One hundred percent of the proceeds will go back to the community.

John Coltrane: His Life and His Music

Special to The Truth

In observance of Jazz Appreciation Month, the Toledo-Lucas County Public Library recommends the book John Coltrane: His Life and Music by Lewis Porter (2000). Coltrane was a key figure in jazz, a pioneer in world music, and an intensely emotional force whose following continues to grow. This biography, the first by a professional jazz scholar and performer, presents a huge amount of never-before-published material, including interviews with Coltrane, photos, genealogical documents, and innovative musical analysis that offers a fresh view of Coltrane’s genius.

Compiled from scratch with the assistance of dozens of Coltrane’s colleagues, friends, and family, this book corrects numerous errors from previous biographies. The significant people in Coltrane’s life were re-interviewed, yielding new insights; some were interviewed for the first time ever.

The musical analysis, which is accessible to the non-specialist, makes its own revelations—for example, that some of Coltrane’s well-known pieces are based on previously unrecognized sources. The Appendix is the most detailed chronology of Coltrane’s performing career ever compiled, listing scores of previously unknown performances from the 1940s and early 1950s.

Coltrane has become a musical inspiration for thousands of fans and musicians and a personal inspiration to as many more. For all of these, Porter’s book will become the definitive resource—a reliable guide to the events of Coltrane’s life and an insightful look into his musical practices.

“... well researched, musically knowledgeable, and enormously interesting to read. Porter is a jazz scholar with deep knowledge of the tradition he is studying, both conceptually and technically.” --Richard Crawford, University of Michigan.

“Lewis Porter is a meticulous person with love and respect for Afro-American classical music. I applaud this definitive study of my friend John Coltrane’s life and achievements.” --Jimmy Heath, jazz saxophonist, composer, educator.

Lewis Porter is Associate Professor of Music, Rutgers University in Newark. A leading jazz scholar, he is the author of Jazz Readings from a Century of Change and coauthor of Jazz: From Its Origins to the Present. He was a project consultant on The Complete Atlantic Recordings of John Coltrane, which was nominated for a Grammy Award for Best Historical Reissue, and an editor and assisting author of the definitive

FamilyFun Magazine Names Toledo Zoo Second in the Nation

Special to The Truth

The Toledo Zoo has been honored as a FamilyFun Magazine Travel Awards winner, and appears in the magazine’s April issue. The Travel Awards rely on real families from across the country to recognize the nation’s best kid-friendly locations and vacation spots. U.S. family travel destinations were ranked in a variety of categories, including kid-friendly cities and sites, zoos and aquariums, and theme parks.

The Toledo Zoo earned double national honors: second among zoos and aquariums, and eighth overall. “I’m honored that so many FamilyFun readers rate the Toledo Zoo as a top choice,” Jeff Sailer, the Zoo’s executive director, said. “We are grateful for our visitors’ support and for Lucas County voters’ longtime levy support which make this possible.”

The full list of categories in this year’s FamilyFun Travel Awards includes historic sites, museums, national parks and preserves, kid-friendly cities, zoos and aquariums, and theme parks. To view all the FamilyFun Travel Awards winners, check out the April issue of FamilyFun magazine in print or on the iPad, or visit familyfunmag.com.

The Toledo Zoo is a family favorite destination for weekends, spring breaks and any day. Upcoming events include Soar & Explore Apr. 5-6; the Animal Egg Hunt on Apr. 18; and Breakfast with the Bunny Apr. 18-19. Both the Animal Egg Hunt and Breakfast with the Bunny are sponsored by Meijer.
‘Blizzard Bag’ Support for Students

Toledo Public Schools:
Toledo Public Schools will be offering Blizzard Bag assistance for K-8 students on Wednesday, April 16 and Thursday, April 17 from 9 – 11 a.m. Help sessions will be held at each TPS high school – a certified teacher will be assigned to the school to help students who might have questions about their assignments.

Boys & Girls Clubs:
• The Boys & Girls Club will be open extra hours with extra staff during spring break to assist TPS students with their Blizzard Bag assignments.
• Spring break hours are Monday, April 14 through Thursday, April 17, from noon to 5:00 pm.
• The Club locations are:
  - Hanham Club – 2250 N. Detroit Ave. – Toledo, OH 43606
  - North Club at Sherman School – 817 Sherman St. – Toledo, OH 43608
  - Carson Family Club at Marshall School – 415 Colburn – Toledo, OH 43609
  - East Toledo Club at East Broadway School – 1755 East Broadway – Toledo, OH 43605

Toledo-Lucas County Public Libraries:
• The local libraries will be open during the week of April 14. Neighborhood libraries offer resources and support materials for students who are working to complete their Blizzard Bag assignments.

YMCA/ICC:
• The YMCA/ICC of Greater Toledo, in support of the Toledo Public Schools Blizzard Bag initiative, will be providing specific academic support at our six 21st Century Community Learning Centers. These schools are Spring, Glenwood, Rosa Parks, Jones, Leverette and Riverside elementary and will be open from 10 a.m. – noon on Monday, April 14 and Wednesday, April 16.
• Enrollment is open for children in grades 1st-8th. Children who are not currently enrolled in the program can attend on these two days, but parents will have to pre-register for the day and can do so by calling 419-725-7850 and speaking to Debbie Frison.
• Families who need child care and educational enrichment for their spring break can register at any of our YMCA Child Care programs and can get further information by calling our main office at 419-474-3995.

Legal Aid Practice Group to Focus on Educational Disparities

Special to The Truth

Recent statistics show that although only 43 percent of the Toledo Public School student population is African American, more than 70 percent of the days lost to disciplinary issues involved black students. An issue brief released by The Kirwan Institute for the Study of Race and Ethnicity at the Ohio State University’s highlights a number of alarming disparities in the application of school discipline policies in Ohio schools among African American, Latino, and White students.

“More than 70 percent of the students involved in school-related arrests or who are referred to law enforcement were Hispanic or Black” says Robert Cole, a managing attorney with Advocates for Basic Legal Equality, Inc. (ABLE). Cole points out that “contrary to the prevailing assumption that African American students are just getting what they deserve” when they are disciplined, research shows that African American students do not ‘act out’ in the classroom any more than their white peers.”

Partner law firms ABLE and Legal Aid of Western Ohio, Inc. (LAWO) have established a Meaningful and Appropriate Education Practice Group to address policies that result in obstacles to educational opportunities such as disproportionate and inappropriate discipline, highlighted in the Kirwan Institute report, and other barriers to educational opportunities for children in their 32 county service area of northwest and west central Ohio.

“Students who have been suspended are three times more likely to drop out by the 10th grade than students who have never been suspended. Dropping out in turn triples the likelihood that a person will be incarcerated later in life,” adds Cole, who manages the new practice group.

The Kirwan Institute’s issue brief follows a January 2014 release by the federal Departments of Justice and Education on guidelines for school discipline. According to the joint statement, students of certain racial, ethnic, or disability groups tend to be disciplined more than their peers. A copy of the brief, “Racial Disproportionality in School Discipline: Implicit Bias is Heavily Implicated,” can be found here.

“The LAWO and ABLE Education Practice Group will focus its work on addressing systemic issues to ensure appropriate educational opportunities, particularly for children living in poverty, African American and Latino children, immigrant children, homeless children, children in foster care, and children with disabilities,” says Cole. “We may be able to help eligible individuals in the northwest Ohio area who are facing these challenges.”

Applications for legal help can be made by calling Legal Aid Line at 1-888-534-1432 or online at www.legalaidline.org.

ABLE and LAWO are non-profit law firms that provide free legal assistance in civil matters to low-income individuals and groups in a 32-county area of northwest and west central Ohio.

The Ultimate Book of Vehicles From Around the World by Anne-Sophie Baumann & Didier Balicevic

By Terri Schlichenmeyer
The Truth Contributor

Daddy calls you his back-seat driver.

That’s because you sit in the back in your car seat, and you keep an eye out for anything you might like to drive someday. Or haul. Or dig. Or float, run, lift, pump, and tow. Anything with wheels, that’s what you notice.

But why wait until you grow up? If you’ve got The Ultimate Book of Vehicles From Around the World by Anne-Sophie Baumann and Didier Balicevic by your side, you can pretend to drive, dig, or haul right now.

Or maybe you’re a fan of farms. Do you love tractors and combines? Then you’ll like the ones in this book, because you’ll see how the insides of some machines work.

Do you and Grandpa share a love of trains? Then you’ll want to show him what’s here: two big pages of trains complete with a chance to peek inside to see what they haul. Now you’ll never have to wonder if there are people or freight riding in those boxcars!

There are even more big trucks inside this book. You’ll see ambulances and fire trucks and a fire lift so you can help save someone’s life. You can look inside a great big freight ship, a luxury cruise ship, a medium-sized fishing boat, and a fancy yacht. If you want to be an airplane pilot someday, then you’ll like seeing the inside of a jumbo jet, a cargo plane, and a glider. Be sure to spin the helicopter propeller!

And finally, if your need for speed is out of this world, check out the last page of this book. It’s going to send you over the moon!

So you say you’ve got a wheel-wild youngster in the house – one who can’t get enough of big machines that go? Then you’re going to want to go find The Ultimate Book of Vehicles From Around the World.

But giving car- and truck-loving kids cartoon drawings of motorized equipment isn’t all that authors Anne-Sophie Baumann and Didier Balicevic offer. On just about every page of this colorful book, there are tabs to pull and flaps to lift. Your kids can deliver cargo, roll a cement mixer, raise a scissors truck, dump garbage, make hay, feed their neighbors, douse a fire, and captain a ship.

And what three-to-five-year-old wouldn’t love all of the above? I don’t know, but I do know lots of dads who would enjoy sharing this book, too. I think The Ultimate Book of Vehicles From Around the World is one they’ll both dig.

Quilt University: Transforming Oral Learning into Academic Knowledge

By Lucy Thelma Osbourne

QU Press; ISBN 978—0-615-71042-6 (pbk.), $30

A guide to thriving in the university, based on memoir, theory, and good plain advice.

Quilt University: Transforming Oral Learning into Academic Knowledge crosses generic borders between memoir, literary criticism, and educational theory, with the intention of helping to transform the school experience for all those who have ever wondered if they belong in school and if they can succeed in school.

Author Lucy Thelma Osbourne explains, “Quilt University is my metaphor for a learning environment where people meet to validate themselves while establishing a community in which they practice learning. I use the quilt to chronicle my experience as a non-traditional African American graduate student participating in an academic environment.”

In Quilt University, her first book, Osbourne describes and analyzes how “the dominant culture can keep you on the outside by not accepting your base of knowledge.” She explains how she recognized and built upon her own base of knowledge, the quilting culture in which she grew up and which wraps around her throughout her life, in order to succeed in academics. In this way, her work is in the tradition of W.E.B. DuBois’s “double consciousness” as developed in The Souls of Black Folk.

Osbourne cautions, “If individuals are to survive in the dominant culture and in Academic University, they need to rely on their inner voices and trust themselves and the universe as centers from which to speak, identify, and validate self.” She explains that mentors with whom she could identify, whether met in daily life or through the pages of books, proved essential in developing that inner voice and identity.

She introduces us to her mentors who include Alice Walker, Zora Neale Hurston, and Harriet Powers, as well as the quilters she meets everywhere she goes, and the scholars with whom she has worked and learned at conferences and in classrooms along the way.

This book provides inspiration as well as practical advice for parents, teachers, and administrators who want to help students learn in K-12 and postsecondary education, as well as for students who must take control of their own learning by recognizing and building upon the value of their own experiences and the knowledge they have inherited from family and community.

Whereas Osbourne talks about her experiences as an African American woman, the notion of transforming academic learning by building on personal experience is equally relevant for any person, regardless of age, ethnicity or gender. Quilt University itself, as a book, is pieced together as one piece to any work of creative art.

Osbourne brings eight decades of experience and deep reflection to bear on persistent racism, the violence of exclusion, and the ever-shifting rules in mainstream schooling that make surviving and thriving in schools a continual challenge. But she addresses these issues in a positive way that is a joy to read by telling how she handled them and achieved the ability to be fully human inside both “academic university” and “quilt university.”

The book includes beautiful plates of quilts made by the author’s mother, which give a powerful illustration of the difference in worldview demonstrated in the “crazy quilt” and the “patchwork quilt,” and also a profound sense of the creativity involved in constructing individual understanding.

The book is available on Amazon as well as direct from the publisher, QU Press, located in Toledo. Osbourne will be a featured author at the Toledo-Lucas County Open Book event in May.

Osbourne will present an illustrated talk and sign books on Monday, April 7, from 4:30-6:00, at the University of Toledo’s Rocket Hall, room 1551, on the corner of Dorr Street and Secor Avenue. This event is co-sponsored by the UT Department of Educational Foundations and Leadership, UT Department of Women’s and Gender Studies, and UT@TPS. Refreshments will be served. Parking is free and the public is invited to attend.

Osbourne will be the featured author of the Toledo-Lucas County Public Library Open Book Program on Tuesday, May 13 with the program beginning at 6:30. The event will be at the Kent Branch Library, on the corner of Collingwood and Central Avenues. Refreshments will be served and Ms. Osbourne will sign books.

For more information about either event or to order your copy, contact QU Press at QUpress@bex.net, 419-283-8288.
